Intellectual Property Ground Rules

All results generated from research using this equipment are to be put into the public domain and made available freely and without restriction as soon as they are generated. The University may only assert intellectual property rights over the results if:

- It provides Microsoft with a prior written notice of this; and Grants Microsoft a non-exclusive perpetual royalty-free assignable and sub-licensable licence to use the results FOR ANY PURPOSE WHATSOEVER.
- Any publications connected to work carried out on this equipment are to acknowledge Microsoft Research Limited's support.

These rules shall apply for the first three years of the arrival of the equipment at Edinburgh.

Arrival date = [ 28 June 2002 ]
